Discussion	Presentation on SPENs’ customer segmentation approach. Comments and discussion from the CEG focused on the following areas: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• If the various customer segmentation stages are sequential or can happen in parallel. SPEN explained that it will start with qualitative research, then move onto the quantitative surveys. Once data analysis has been completed and the customer segments identified, SPEN will conduct in-depth interviews to bring each segment to life• If SPEN will use segments that are common to all DNOs or if each DNO is conducting its own bespoke research. SPEN said a joint exercise between all DNOs would not be appropriate as customer segmentation is specific to its own customer base

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> How SPEN is incentivising customers to participate in the research. SPEN said that it would be offering both domestic and commercial customers remuneration in return for participation The validity of the results in the context of having conducted the research in the middle of an epidemic. SPEN acknowledged the situation surrounding COVID-19, mentioning that Ofgem had decided not to delay the RIIO-ED2 process, and therefore the business must press ahead with its research and engagement plans. The customer research would be carried out in the context of “normal life” and not COVID-19 but the company will feedback to Ofgem if it feels this is being compromised in any way as a result of the COVID-19 situation The provision of the surveys in Welsh language. SPEN said that it frequently provides updates and information in Welsh and agreed to do so for this exercise Whether the need, via lockdown, to engage with stakeholders and customers online could risk excluding more vulnerable sections of society from having their say. SPEN said that it does lots of engagement with vulnerable and hard-to-reach groups. As an example, before COVID-19 restrictions, the company held a face-to-face event with vulnerable consumer representatives to understand the blockers to customers in each vulnerable group for low carbon technology. The company plans to do more engagement in similar ways and will utilise all available engagement tools
